

Developing Healthy Relationships A Group for Couples

Starts January 8, 2010

This group is an educational program based on Imago Relationship Theory and Emotional Freedom Techniques specially developed to help couples learn and implement the tools to have a successful relationship. Group members practice relationship skills and learn how to “show up” as more conscious individuals and better partners. Through the use of guided imagery, lectures, and written exercises you will learn:

- The most powerful communication skill required for building a healthy relationship.
- A simple, yet highly effective, technique for reducing and eliminating stress, anxiety, anger, and other negative emotions that destroy relationships.
- How to break “the same old relationship” patterns.
- To identify and change negative behaviors, beliefs, and attitudes which sabotage your relationships.
- How to turn conflict into resolution, intimacy, and personal growth.
- The value of saying goodbye and letting go of past relationships and painful memories.
- To identify your Imago – the fantasy partner that your unconscious mind has chosen for you.

This group is presented by Donna and Dan Fortney. The group has no more than 10 members which creates a warm, safe, and fun environment to explore how to have lasting and rewarding relationships.
